The aim of thematic programs

URL of the page: <https://www.ihp.fr/en/events/thematic-programmes-3-6-12-weeks-2027>

The thematic programs provide in-depth coverage on a cutting-edge research topic over a period of three weeks or six weeks (for short programs) or twelve weeks (for long programs). The Institut Henri Poincaré welcomes all fields of mathematics, theoretical physics and computer science, from theory to practical applications, and is also open to other interfaces such as mathematical biology.

IHP's Scientific Advisory Board (SAB) will give special consideration to applications related to topics which have not recently been selected for scientific activities at the Institute. This includes in particular, but not exhaustively: statistics, scientific computing, high-energy physics, image processing, ...

The Institut Henri Poincaré is committed to address the gender balance issue and to contribute to improve diversity. Therefore, proposals must pay attention to involving a sensible gender ratio and to ensuring equal opportunity for speakers, participants, and in both the organizing committee and the scientific committee.
